COLLOQUIUM OF LEGAL RESEARCH INDIA 2025

A-Y (ANSWER TO WHY)

SEASON 1: 5, 6 & 7 FEBRUARY 2025

CHRIST University
Pune Lavasa

INTRODUCTION

In today's rapidly evolving legal landscape, academia and research have a pivotal role in influencing legislative reform, judicial interpretation, and policy development. Legal research plays an essential role in shaping these changes by addressing contemporary challenges, exploring emerging fields of law, and proposing innovative solutions.

The Colloquium of Legal Research is envisioned as a platform for legal scholars and researchers to engage in meaningful dialogues, present their research, and foster collaboration across a wide range of legal disciplines. Christ University, Lavasa Campus, with its commitment to academic excellence and innovation, is well-suited to host this colloquium, bringing together minds that are actively contributing to legal scholarship in India and beyond.

The A-Y Legal Colloquium, subtitled "Answer to whY," is an innovative and comprehensive platform designed to explore a vast array of legal subjects from A to Y. This colloquium is aimed at addressing foundational and emerging issues in law, engaging scholars across the spectrum of legal disciplines.

A person in a dark suit is writing in a book on a desk. A gavel and scales of justice are visible in the foreground. The text "ABOUT A-Y" is overlaid on the image in a blue, bold font.

ABOUT A-Y

Each letter represents a topic area, from Administrative Law to Youth Justice, covering almost every corner of the legal landscape. By taking this broad alphabetical approach, the colloquium not only provides structure but also ensures no significant area of law is left unexplored.

OBJECTIVES

- Encourage Exchange: Knowledge Facilitate discussions among legal scholars to share insights, methodologies, and research findings across diverse legal fields.
- Promote Research: Interdisciplinary Foster an interdisciplinary approach to legal research, linking law with social sciences, technology, business, and environmental studies.
- Holistic Exploration: The colloquium seeks to cover a diverse range of subjects, encouraging exploration across both traditional and modern legal fields. Topics include foundational areas like Criminal Law and Constitutional Law and expand into modern fields such as Data Privacy, Environmental Law, and Space Law.
- Showcase Emerging Scholars: Provide a platform for emerging scholars and early-career researchers to present their work, receive feedback, and network with peer academicians.
- Discuss Contemporary Legal Challenges: Focus on contemporary legal challenges, such as cyber law, human rights, environmental law, and international trade, encouraging scholars to propose actionable solutions.

- Encouraging New Scholarship and Debate: The "Answer to whY" structure encourages participants to critically examine fundamental questions within each area. Why do we have these laws? Why are certain rights or regulations prioritized? "Why" prompts researchers to go beyond superficial observations and examine the underlying causes, mechanisms, and implications. This leads to deeper analysis, fosters critical thinking, and encourages researchers to question assumptions, explore alternative explanations, and consider broader contexts. This focus on "Why" stimulates rich debate and thought-provoking discussions, inviting participants to question legal assumptions and propose innovative reforms.
- Platform for Emerging Topics: The A-Y framework allows for emerging topics to be highlighted within the colloquium. For example, Artificial Intelligence Law under "A," Blockchain Regulation under "B," and Xenophobia and Anti-Discrimination Law under "X" allow contemporary and even controversial topics to have dedicated discussions.
